

Sub-micron Near-field IR Microscopy of Protein Structures and Polymer Films

Prof. Gilbert Walker
Department of Chemistry, University of Toronto

Materials properties on the 10's of nanometer length scale are important in biology and materials science. Near field imaging with 30nm spatial resolution in the vibrational infrared will be presented. Examples from protein amyloids and block copolymer films will be presented.